A Yates County Romance.

THE STORY OF CANDACE BLIVEN. A Country Girl who Married in Secret and Fell Heir to Two Millions of Dollars-Twenty Years of Weary Waiting.

[From the Elmira Gazette, August 21.] Not long since there was published in the Gazette an allusion to a romance which had for its bome the village of Dundee, in Yates county. Since that time new and important developments have appeared in connection with that story, and we are now enabled to lay before our readers something of a connected parrative of the events hinted at.

The story in its most barren statement of facts is one of strange and rare romance, which will be followed with the greatest interest, from the fact that the real denouement of the drama took place in this city where resides a near relative of the lady who is the chief actor in it. Partly from this relative-Mrs. Charles Rowland-who resides at No. 457 east Water street, and who in too when we approached. is a sister of the heroine in this live rofollows:

In 1855 a gentleman of bigh birth and great wealth in England came to this country to travel for pleasure and to study the scenery and people of the New World. A lover of nature in its most varied and picturesque character, he spent some time in Central New York, going about among our beautiful lakes and tarrying upon their highly cultivated shores. In these rambles he came to the quiet village of Dundre, where he made a home for some time with a Baptist clergyman named Currier. While there he fell into companionship with the daughter of a well-to-do gentleman by the name of Bliven. The girl was at that time sixteen years of age, handsome, engaging,

The acquaintance soon ripened into a sort of romantic friendship, and at last the foreigner, whom we may as well designate by his proper name and title-Sir John Gordon Talmadge-offered his hand to Candace, is to the effect that the two were united by ant-bill. Rev. Mr. Currier, who was pledged to secrecy concerning the marriage for the term not informed of the action of their daughter, nor did the knowledge of the secret marriage come to any of the villagers. Soon afbride and returned to his home across the water, baving promised to record the marriage in due form as soon as he should arhis wife to England.

The year went past, and Sir John did not come. Mean time Rev. Mr. Currier, the only person in America besides the young wife who knew of the transaction, died, and his secret died with him. Another year passed, and five, then ten, almost twenty, and still the waited-for bushand did not return to make good his promises, nor did any tidings, we understand, reach the ears of Candace concerning him. At last, in March of a personal advertisement in one of the New York papers, the long silence was broken, and tidings for which the Dundee bride, now grown to almost middle age, had so long waited, were received. It appears that the return of Sir John to were taken to them without prior knowledge of their son's step. Shortly after his return home it happened that while out riding with ran away, threw the two out, killing his mother, and very seriously injuring Sir John. From this affliction, however, he refate directed his every movement, when he reached Liverpool he was taken severely ill, and for a long time be lay vacillating, as it years, unable to make known the object for which he was journeying when sickness overtook him. In the latter part of last winter sanity strangely returned to the afflicted man, but only for a short interval before death relieved him of that life which had been a burden. During this lucid interval him, and the secret wife in Dundee was uptrue story of his marriage in this country, willed his immense fortune of $4,000,000 half to the brother and a sister, and the other half to his wife in case she might be found alive. He further pledged his brother to send a special messenger to America for the purpose of hunting up his wife.

In pursuance of these pledges, a messenger was, as early as possible after the demiso of Sir John, dispatched to this country with instructions to find the bride by advertisement or by personal search. The advertising was done, as we have seen, but the messenger, following the directions given by the husband before death, came from New York to Dundee soon after landing. At the latter place he found the parents of the lady, who directed him to Elmira, where she was then visiting. This was in the latter part of May last. On arriving in this city the messenger inquired for the residence of Charles Rowland, brother-in-law of the lady whom he sought. He repaired to that gentleman's residence, No. 457 east Water street, where he found the long-waiting and long-sought bride of twenty years ago. The lady happened to be alone at the time the messenger called. The commingling of astonishment, pleasure, and sorrow which contended for mastery as the sadly romantic history of her long-ago bridegroom was unfolded, can be better imagined than told.

Soon after this denouement, Mrs. Talmadge went to Washington, where she is now living with another sister. Mrs. Rowland was at first reluctant to say much about the affair. but she finally talked freely and interestingly concerning her sister's romance. She stated that the messenger from England left with her sister a considerable package, also letters and documents from her late husband. She said Candace talked little about the strange events, and it was probable she had gone to Washington for the purpose of avoiding impertinent inquiries. Mrs. Talmadge has expressed herself entirely satisfied with the result of the strange messenger's visit, but whether or not the documents contained a conveyance of the half of Sir John's estate. as it has been said be left it, Mrs. Rowland was not prepared to say. Candace has re-ceived a large number of communications from lawyers st offering assistance in securing the fortune abroad, but she has uniformly declined all such offers, saying that she had no need of legal aid in the pre-mises. It is understood by her friends that she will before a great while be visited by her brother-in-law, Sir Alfred Talmadge, with whom she will go to England to pos-sess her vast estate. The sister who shares equally with Sir Alfred also married against the parents' wishes. Her husband's name is Stanley. The last known of them they were at Key West, Fla. It is understood sikely a rettaion of the family, including our Dundee girl, will be had. Lady Talmadge's sister states that the clertwo or three times during the year of pledged secrecy, evidently determined to reveal what he had done. His manner is now remembered to have been singular, but at the time it attracted no unusual attention. He two or three jokes we used to tell whe the secretary and the Blivers.

refused to do out of respect for his wishes respecting his own family. A correspond-ence was maintained after Talmadge left, but Candace was always careful to dispose of the etters, and steadfastly retained her secret ocked in her own heart.

ANTELOPE HUNTING ON THE PLATTE RIVER party of my friends were starting down the Platte river to see their herds of cattle. "Don't you want to go along with us? said Calvin. "We may get some antelope." The idea of riding and camping and story telling and hunting for a week seemed charming just then, so, with blankets and riffe, I joined the party. In an hour we came in sight of the river, of which some traveller has said, "It is navigable only for a shingle," so sandy is its bed st d so changing its currents. All day we followed the river bottom, now near the water, now a mile away from it. In the "ox-bows" or bends of the river the grass was growing abundantly, and thousands and tens of thousands of sleek kine were feeding there.

Near the high lands we saw great numbers of prairie dogs and little owls living in the same holes. The dogs wagged their tails, and, barking with great energy, ran into their houses. The owls, old and young, toddled Toward evening we saw tall, blue cranes mance, and partly from scraps published in alighting on the sand-bars. Flocks of ducks relation thereto, we gather the story of Can- arose from the water and fled from the hawks. dace Talmadge, nee Bliven, substantially as Jack-rabbits bounded queerly from our path, and a little way off turned to see what we intended to do. We saw two wolves sneaking among the bluffs, but never an antelope.

The morning after we reached Dana's cattle camp we went out early among the sandhills for antelopes.

We agreed to bunt independently, and during the next half-hour we saw plenty of game in the distance. After a time Dana and I met. Carelessly ascending a little sand-hill we started up a lenely buck We so quickly sank upon the ground that the animal had only a glimpse of us, and after a sharp run turned to satisfy its ever-eager curiosity as to what we were. My companion passed his red bandkerchief to me.

"Wave that," he whispered, "on the end of your rifle. We'll try the Indian game on him. Easy! Wave it easy."

Slowly I waved the flag to and fro, just in the creature's sight, while Dana settled his body at full length upon the sand, and which was accepted. The direct narrative rested his Winchester rifle on an unoccupied

The antelope now advanced a few steps, retreated, turned and looked again. As we of one year. The parents of Candace were presented the same appearance, he became as curious concerning us as Blue Beard's wife about the forbidden room. Several times we thought he had seen enough of us, and was ter the wedding, Sir John left his young off. But no; his intense curiosity forced him nearer and nearer. Unused to hunting as I was, I became much excited. Had that antelope been an elephant I don't believe I rive, and having additionally promised that could have hit it. I had what old hunters he would return within the year and take call "buck fever." Suddenly the buck exposed his side to us. Crack! went Dana's rifle and over went the antelope.

We saw a herder on his pony not far away, and beckoned him to come near. Dana knew him, and asked him to pack our game to camp. But no sooner had we placed it bebind the saddle than the pony reared and plunged until he bad dislodged his burden. So we cut off the haunches, and, making pack-horses of ourselves, took them to camp.

In the month of June it is not a hard matlast, we believe, through the instrumentality | ter to capture young antelopes. They are then so fruil and tender that a man on horseback soon overtakes them. They are then taught to take milk from a bottle, and soon become very tame. We saw several so tame that they would come at call. We passed a turf cabin where there were five of these England without his American wife was for pretty pets, all with ribbons about the neck, the purpose of arranging matters satisfac- and one, a graceful doe, with a cherry-coltorily with his parents, who he knew would be indisposed to receive his bride if she ard in St. Nicholas for September.

WHY HER PLAN DIDN'T WORK .- The Pottsville (Pa.) Miners' Journal is responsihis mother one day his horse took fright, ble for the following story : "A Phænixville maid, quite old, becoming anxious about her matrimonial chances, recently con-John. From this affliction, however, he recocted a plan to deceive a young fellow as to covered partially, and in due time set out for her age. This was the way she tried it: America to reclaim his wife. As if adverse The old family Bible contained a faithful record of all births, marriages, and deaths. This volume the maiden took to her chamber, and, selecting the birth page, she managed, by dint of scratching and writing, to change the date of her birth to a period eleven years later than what it had legitimately been recorded. Then the Bible was placed on the sitting-room table in a conspicuous manner. That evening came along the lover. He soon began to finger the Bible pages, and finally reached the birth record, where and when he discovered, to his surprise, that his Angelina covered, to his surprise, that his Angelina man for the birth record, where and when he discovered, to his surprise, that his Angelina man for the birth record, where and when he discovered, to his surprise, that his Angelina was just one year younger than he. He This volume the maiden took to her were, between life and death. Though she managed, by dint of scratching and recovering, his illness had so preyed writing, to change the date of her birth on him that he became demented, in to a period eleven years later than what it which condition be lived all these had legitimately been recorded. Then the was just one year younger than he. He recollection of his earlier life came back to thought it strange, as she appeared older. He kept his mouth shut and continued to permost in his thoughts. He made known fumble over the pages. Next he began read-to his brother, now Sir Alfred Talmadge, the ing the death list, and made the very astoning the death list, and made the very astonishing discovery that the radiant maiden, according to the Bible, had actually been born ten years after the decease of her father. The young man quietly arose and bid Angelina good-bye, and now swears that 'eternal vigilance is indeed the price of liberty."

ANCIENT TREES IN NEVADA .- The Virginia City (Nevada) Enterprise says: "In the bottom of the main shaft of the Virginia City Coal Company, Eldorado coñon, Lyon county, has been encountered the trunk of a tree four feet in diameter, a lone relic of an ancient and extinct forest. Where cut through by the shaft this old tree is found to be perside the old log is completely crusted over with iron pyrites, many of which are so bright that the crystals shine like diamonds. These pyrites also extend boarders, on very reasonable terms.

This relic of an old-time forest lies far below the two veins of coal the company are about to open. The finding of this old trunk is evidence that the country was at some time, ages and ages ago, covered by a forest of large trees, though the native timber growth, when the country was first visited by the whites, and as far back as the traditions of the Indians extend. was but a scrubby species of nut-pine. A tew miles from the shaft in which this carbonized tree was found are to be seen on the surface the petrified remains of many large trees. In the early days of Washee, before the prospectors had broken them up for specimens, pieces of tree-trunks two or three feet in diameter and twenty or thirty feet in length, were to be seen lying upon the surface of the ground. However, these trees, and even the one found in the bottem of the shaft of the coal mine, may have come from the foot-hills of the Sierra Nevada mountains-may have drifted out when meas of water everywhere covered our present valleys. The water lines visible on the bille show that the whole country was filed with lakes, and the petrified trees lying here and there on the surface of the ground at the Springs.

A Terre Harte teacher named Joab went out for a ride and a day of pleasure. He got it. In attempting to ford a river he was nearly drowned, and then he drove over a steep bank six feet high, the horse and wagon rolling over him and nearly wrecking the whole business. Having repaired damages he started for home, but had not got far when be was way laid by a high wayman. He stated the surviving brother has instituted a search his case to the footpad, and as he had no for this sister. Should she be found, it is money, was not robbed.

Terre Haute Express: A country editor who didn't get tickets to the circus, crawled Lady Talmadge's sister states that the cler-gyman who performed the secret marriage next day: "The circus last night was a protwenty years ago came to her father's house digious fraud. It would not have been tole-

A malogies. BY BOGAR PAWCETT. I leunge against my garden gate;
On one side heaven the sun hangs low;
Down one side crawls the exhausted storm
That flashed and crashed an hour ago.
I lounge and see, with musing eye,
Two roses and a butterfly.

One is a sumptuous, languid rose
That bows its heavy, lovely head,
White each fresh peral's velvet surve
Burns with the same deep drowsy ed;
Circe her subtle self (who knews?) Piotting new sorceries in a rose!

One is a pale, pure bloom, with leaves
Like satin in the ir lu-tres mild,
Half-closed, and fainter flushed than looks
The chaste paim of a little child;
Or pink as some late sunsets are,
That yearn to feel the evening star! The butterfly's quick quivering wings wear each the blendings of such hues
As lurk in some old tapestry's
Dim turmolis of golds, crimsons, blues;
Wings where quil, smoldering color lies,
Lit richly with two peacock eyes!

He cannot leave the great red rose;
He flutters near it, both to part
From all the fragrant charm which girds
That blood-dr.p warm from summer's heart
And * * * on the pale rose, gitmmering near.
One rain-drop sparkles, like acter!
